INTRODUCTION

This bulletin is a revision of "Officers, Boards, and Commissions of Texas" published in 1916. The purpose of the bulletin is to bring together in concise form information about the various departments of State Government in Texas, which is available in the State Constitution and Statutes, but is not readily accessible. The creation of new departments, the abolition of several old ones, and especially the consolidation caused by the passage of the Board of Control Act make a revision necessary in order to bring the information regarding Texas State Government up to date.

For convenience of publication, the officers, boards and commissions are classified as: (1) Constitutional Officers, (2) Statutory Officers that are Heads of Departments and other Statutory Officers, (3) Executive and Supervisory Boards and Commissions, (4) Boards of Control for State Institutions—educational, eleemosynary, and penal, (5) Examining Boards and Commissions, (6) Ex-officio and Advisory Boards and Commissions, and (7) Miscellaneous Boards, Bureaus, and Commissions. A brief description of the judicial and legislative departments is included.

The information regarding each office, board, and commission is grouped under the following heads: date of creation, composition, appointment, qualification, term, compensation, duties, number of officers and employes, and appropriation. Additional information and explanations are found in notes.

The date of creation is the time of establishment of the first office or a similar one and is not always the date of the organization of the office in its present form. No dates are given previous to the establishment of the Republic of Texas in 1836. Only actual qualifications are included. Disqualifications and requirements are omitted. Under duties a short statement of the most important duties is given. Numerous powers granted to an officer, board, or commission could not be included. The number of officers and employes is an approximate estimate based on information furnished by department officials or taken from the biennial appropriation acts. The appropriations given are for the two years ending August 31, 1919, and August 31, 1920.

The bulletin has been prepared under the supervision of Professor Charles G. Haines of the faculty of the School of Government of the University of Texas. Messrs. John R. Anthony and William B. Ball, Research Assistants in the Bureau of Government Research, have assisted in checking the facts presented herewith.
